Visit our website to learn more about The Orange Grove, and access tutorials on repository features.

The Orange Grove Repository will present the first Star Awards to authors or developers who create and contribute original resources to the repository. The digital resource that receives the most stars from peer reviews will be awarded the first prize – a Camtasia Studio license. Other highly rated resource creators will be recognized with letters of commendation. All content will be featured in a webinar and on our website.

User ratings will determine the Star Award winners. Comments can be easily added to a resource's descriptive information and provide insights as to the quality and potential uses for a resource.

Winners will be announced Fall, 2009 – so contribute your resources now! You must have an Orange Grove account to contribute, comment on, and rate resources.

Requirements

1. Resources must be produced in a format that is viewable in standard web browsers without purchasing software -- for example, PDF files or Flash files.
2. Resources should be vetted by one subject-area peer to ensure they are free from factual errors. The peer reviewer's name will be required during contribution.
3. Permission to access the resource must be granted to all Florida educators or to the general public.
